THE THEATRE ROYAL PRESENTS AN ENSEMBLE THEATRE PRODUCTION

HALPERN & JOHNSON

BY LIONEL GOLDSTEIN

“... McDonald and Szeps are outrageously good at the subtle nuances of human behaviour... the kind of theatre that people want to pay to see...”

Australian Stage Online

Garry McDonald and Henri Szeps reunite for this award-winning drama about two very different men with one surprising thing in common.

Joseph Halpern is mourning the loss of his wife Flo and taking a few minutes alone by her graveside when he is approached by a stranger, introducing himself as Dennis Johnson. As the two men talk Johnson reveals an affection for Florence that is more than that for a dear, departed friend and in so doing uncovers more than just the secret of their relationship.

With warmth and wit, Lionel Goldstein's play explores the complex web of marriage and friendship, secrets and lies, mixing sharp human insight with cracking humour.

Garry McDonald and Henri Szeps are brilliant as these two polar opposites in this touching and funny play about loyalty and betrayal.
